

General Data Protection Regulation

On 25 May 2018, the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) will come into force, replacing the Data Protection Act 1998. This will be the most significant change in data protection law in the last 20 years and will change the way organisations are able to capture, use and share personal data within their business, and externally.

All employers operating in the UK, from SMEs to global franchises and public sector bodies, hold information about individuals (whether they be employees, customers or anyone else) and so will be affected by the new data protection laws.

A failure to comply with new regulations could leave organisations open to enforcement action which could damage their public reputation, as well their bank balance.

We take a hands-on approach to assisting with the changes required under the GDPR, advising not just on the letter of the law, but also giving practical guidance on how to prepare for the new regime.

For more information, please contact one of our GDPR experts, details overleaf.

Ensuring Compliance - how can we help?

Open education system

Throughout 2017 and early 2018 Capital Law will be hosting half and full day courses intended to equip you with more detailed knowledge of how GDPR affects your organisation, and what you need to do to ensure compliance:

GDPR in the world of HR (half day)	£250 plus VAT
GDPR in the commercial world (half day)	£250 plus VAT
Attendance to both courses (full day)	£450 plus VAT

(Discounts available for multiple bookings within organisations)

Bespoke training for your organisation

- Tailored training sessions for HR, management and other employees who handle personal data and/or customer data, improving knowledge and understanding of the new requirements
- Fulfilling your role as a Data Protection Officer
- Dealing with Subject Access Requests – new processing regulations and subject access rights
- One Day GDPR overview – all you need to know, tailored to your organisation's needs
- Half Day GDPR introduction – the key issues and key messages for staff

Data Protection Gap Analysis

- A preliminary audit of your current level of data protection compliance and readiness for GDPR
- A prioritised and specific compliance action plan
- Advice on and/or provision of policies and process documents
- Provision of support and guidance on implementing the action plan, and good practice resources relevant to your needs
