Stacey is part of our commercial disputes team. Before joining Capital Law, she gained experience acting on behalf of a variety of clients, including large insurers. She also worked within the Legal Expense Insurance sector. Her experience in insurance includes defending claims on behalf of large motor insurers; advising insurers on liability and indemnity issues; advising individuals on coverage and assisting with claims against and involving insurers, including professional negligence claims.

EXPERIENCE

- Eversheds, Associate, Financial services disputes and investigations practice area;
- William Graham Law, Solicitor, Commercial Litigation

Stacey developed expertise in commercial litigation advising and acting on behalf of individuals and companies involved in contractual, consumer and construction disputes. She also acted on behalf of individuals pursuing professional negligence claims against accountants, brokers, solicitors and surveyors and more latterly, gained experience acting on behalf of high profile financial institutions involved in mortgage litigation.

Since joining Capital Law in September 2014, Stacey has built upon her experience in commercial disputes, including gaining experience in property litigation, contentious probate and trust litigation and restructuring and insolvency matters. She has also developed experience in regulatory matters and judicial review proceedings against NHS bodies and government organisations.
